Auburn Alumni Association, Auburn, Alabama

Nov. 20 is the day

Auburn is the place

Homecoming, 1954

Homecoming Day, 1954, is Nov. 20.

The Auburn campus will greet returning alumni with a traditional "War Eagle" welcome. Climax of the weekend activities will come at 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 20, in Cliff Hare Stadium with the kickoff for the football classic between the Auburn Tigers and the Clemson Tigers.

The gala weekend will include four class reunions, the annual Auburn Alumni Association meeting and election of officers Saturday morning and a giant "Beat Clemson" pep rally Friday night.

Tours of the campus, open houses in the sorority rooms and at campus religious centers, two all-campus dances and a variety of social events at all of Auburn's 22 fraternity houses are also scheduled.

Begin Friday afternoon

Homecoming activities will get underway Friday afternoon, Nov. 19. The registration desk in the alumni headquarters of the new million-dollar Auburn Union will be open from 1-6 p.m.

For the first time, the Homecoming activities will center in the Auburn Union.

Homecoming will offer many alumni their first opportunity to see the new building, which houses alumni association, faculty club, cafeteria, game rooms, student lounges and offices and all the facilities of a modern student center. The building was opened in January.

Alumni returning to the campus early will find an opportunity to visit with classmates, to note the development of the campus and to talk with former professors.

Four reunion classes

REUNION CLASSES are those of 1904, 1914, 1929 and 1943. All will hold separate dinners at 7 p.m. Friday (see schedule), and will unite to attend the reunion luncheon at 11 a.m. Saturday in the Union ballroom.

Classes will schedule business sessions at their own convenience.

Alumni Secretary Joseph B. Sarver, Jr., '37, reminded members of the reunion classes that the deadline for reservations is Nov. 6. He urged all who plan to attend the Homecoming activities to send in reservations and checks to the Auburn Alumni office before that date.

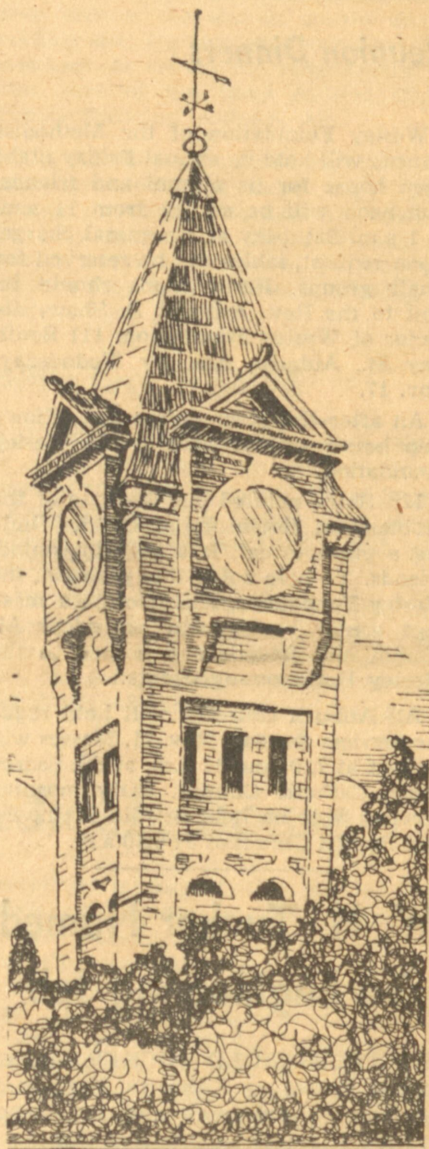

Detailed information and reservation forms have been mailed from the Auburn Alumni Association to all members of the reunion classes. Arrangements have been made for members of the reunion classes who attend the Homecoming activities to sit in a body at the football game.

Open house for all

THE ALUMNI Association's annual open house at Dairyland Farms on the Opelika Highway Friday night is planned for all Auburn alumni. The warm fellowship which is so vital a part of the Auburn Spirit will be extended to everyone attending. Barbecue and snacks will be served throughout the evening. There will be no charge.

The open house will begin at 9 p.m. Association officers and members of the reunion classes will be on hand.

Also on the Friday night schedule is the annual Homecoming pep rally. Auburn's head cheerleader, Buddy Jacobs of Fairfield, said the students will gather at Ross Square at 7 p.m. Friday.

The Auburn Band will lead a march through the business section. Enthusiastic Auburn supporters will parade back to Hare Stadium for the rally.

An all-campus dance will be held in the Student Activities Building from 8 p.m. to midnight Friday. During intermission, Blue Key will present a trophy to the fraternity with the winning Homecoming decorations.

Strick Newsom, Blue Key president from Sandersville, Ga., said that all 22 of Auburn's fraternities will enter the Homecoming decorations contest. The exhibits, which will feature the battle of the Tigers, will be spotlighted Friday night.

Blue Key has planned special tours of the campus to see the decorations at all fraternity houses. Buses, provided for alumni who are interested in seeing the decorations, will leave the Auburn Union every hour on the hour Saturday morning.

Melodrama on stage

THE AUBURN Players will present "Gold in the Hills," at 8:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the Y Hut. The "old-fashioned melodrama" will be staged in costume, with a number of vaudeville-type song and dance routines. Director Telfair B. Peet said the play will end its ten-day run the night of Homecoming.

Tickets will be on sale at the door.

Registration in Union

A REGISTRATION desk will be open in the Auburn Union lobby Saturday morning. Coffee will also be served to visitors in the lobby.

President Clyde C. Pearson, '26, of Montgomery, will call the annual meeting of the Auburn Alumni Association to order in the banquet rooms on the basement floor of the Auburn Union at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Election of officers will be included in the business session.

Reunion luncheons are scheduled at 11 a.m. in the ballroom of the Auburn Union. Each reunion class will sit at special tables.

Many fraternities are planning buffet luncheons for visiting alumni. The Auburn Union cafeteria will open two lines for Homecoming visitors.

Kickoff 2 p.m.

THE MAJOR business of the afternoon will be the Auburn-Clemson football game in Hare Stadium. The athletic ticket office expects a repeat performance of the 1953 Homecoming crowd, when 25,000 filled Cliff Hare Stadium to capacity for the first time since it was enlarged.

An after-the-game coffee and fellowship house will be held at the Wesley Foundation.

Mr. Shaw pointed out that one of the problems of Homecoming, besides finding a place to eat, is a way to contact friends. To help solve this problem, the Wesley Foundation will operate a message center Friday and Saturday. All alumni and friends are invited to the Wesley Homecoming events.

All Auburn churches will hold regular services Sunday, Nov. 21. Masses will be said at 7, 9, and 11 a.m. at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church. Early morning services will be held by the Methodist and Baptist Churches at 8:30 a.m.

W. H. Tucker Named To Engineering Job

WALTER HAROLD TUCKER, '44, assumed duties as Auburn's director of engineering extension and the co-operative engineering program Oct. 1.

He was appointed by Dean J. E. Hannum of the School of Engineering to succeed the late Alex O. Taylor, '21.

Mr. Tucker will work closely with Alabama engineering groups in bringing conferences to the Auburn campus and holding classes, workshops and short courses throughout the state. He will also contact business firms in Alabama and nearby states in regard to placing Auburn co-operative engineering students in jobs.

Co-op himself

BEFORE graduating from API in mechanical engineering, Mr. Tucker was a co-operative student himself. He was employed by the T. C. King Co. of Anniston as construction supervisor.

During the past 10 years he has been a construction engineer, working principally in the field of design and construction of gaseous diffusion plants. He has been connected with the Maxon Construction Co., Oak Ridge, Tenn.; the Austin Company, Freeport, Tex.; F. H. McGraw and Company, Paducah, Ky. Mr. Tucker returned to Auburn from a position with Grinnell Corporation in Portsmouth, Ohio.

The new director of engineering extension served in the Army with the Manhattan Project Engineers, and participated in the Bikini bomb tests while on active duty with the Navy.

Navy Sets ROTC Scholarship Tests

THE NAVY'S ninth nationwide competitive examinations for its college NROTC training program will be held Dec. 11, 1954.

High school seniors and graduates between 17 and 21 who are male citizens of the United States are eligible to take the examinations, which will be conducted at Auburn and other selected colleges throughout the country.

Successful candidates will be awarded a four-year college scholarship and will be commissioned as officers in the Navy or Marine Corps upon graduation. The Navy will select about 1,800 students to enter the program at the beginning of the 1955 fall term.

Applications for the examination are available at the NROTC office, Brown Hall, API, Auburn, Ala. They may also be secured from Naval recruiting stations and high schools. All applications must reach Princeton, N. J., before Nov. 20, 1954, for consideration.

Personal interviews

THE YOUNG men who pass the aptitude test on Dec. 11 will be interviewed and given physical examinations later.

The students selected to receive scholarships may attend the college of their choice, if it is one of the 52 in the nation with Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps units. Auburn is one of these.

When accepted by the college, the students will be appointed midshipmen, USNR. Their tuition, books and normal fees will be paid by the government. In addition, the midshipmen will receive pay at the rate of $50 a month for a four-year period.

Auburn now has 115 midshipmen who hold Navy scholarships.

Commissions given

UPON COLLEGE graduation, the students are commissioned as officers in the Regular Navy or Marine Corps, whichever they select. They will serve on active duty for three years. Then they may choose to remain in the Regular Navy or Marine Corps, or they may transfer to the reserve if the national defense permits.

The opportunity for a college education under the Navy college training program is an excellent one for high school students, Capt. E. F. May, commanding officer of Auburn's NROTC unit, pointed out.

Alumni can do a real service to young men and to their country by telling qualified high school seniors about the scholarship program.

At annual Homecoming breakfast

Band Alumni Club To Award Keys

THE AUBURN BAND Alumni Club will hold its annual Homecoming breakfast and meeting in the cafeteria in the basement of the Auburn Union at 8:30 a.m. Nov. 20.

The band will honor the four directors who have served Auburn since the first "Cadet Band" was organized in 1899.

Band keys will be presented to Professor Michael Thomas Fullan, '99, (retired), director from 1899-1906; Albert L. (Susie) Thomas, '04, director from 1906-1922; P. R. (Chief) Bidez, '15, director from 1922-1951; and David Herbert, the present director.

All members of the 1954 Auburn Band will be guests at the breakfast.

Alumni to play concert

THE ALUMNI will present Auburn Band keys to members of the 1954 band who have earned them. To earn a key, a musician must play in the Auburn Band eight quarters, maintain a B average in band courses, attend practices regularly and perform in major public concerts while a band member.

In the past, players have purchased their own keys as they became eligible for them.

George J. Burrus, III, '37, president of the Band Alumni, will make the presentations.

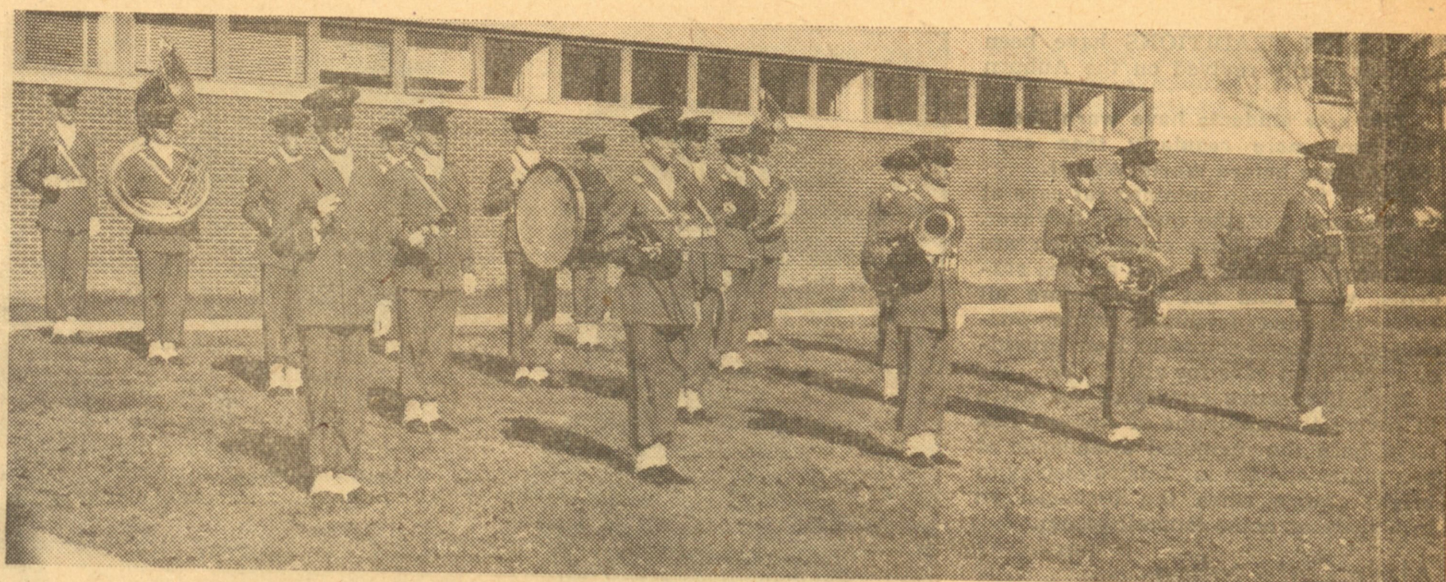

Mr. Burrus asked all former members to bring their instruments, so the alumni can perform the "Alma Mater" and a few other well-known Auburn numbers following the breakfast.

A short business meeting which will include the discussion of possible projects for the band alumni will be held following the breakfast.

The band alumni have been active in talking to students about Auburn. They sponsored a tour of the state by the Auburn Band and have contributed funds toward a band scholarship at Auburn.

500 notices mailed

CLEVELAND ADAMS, '32, executive secretary of the Auburn Band Alumni

HONOR BAND IS READY TO MARCH

Club, said that about 500 letters have been sent to the alumni on the club's mailing list. He reminded former band members to return the reservations to him, care of the Band Alumni Club, Textile Building, Auburn, Ala.

Mr. Adams also pointed out that the band probably has more than 1,000 former members, although the records list only half this number. He asked former members who have not received information about the club's meeting to write to him.

API's first in South

AUBURN'S was the first college band in the South, and the Auburn Band Alumni Club is the second oldest in the United States. The alumni first organized in 1949, on the band's 50th anniversary.

In 1898 a drum and bugle corps appeared on the campus. The next year, under the leadership of Professor Fullan, the group became the Auburn Cadet Band. At first the musicians played only for military drills.

The Auburnites have played for four presidents: Theodore Roosevelt, Warren G. Harding, Franklin D. Roosevelt and at Harry S. Truman's inauguration parade in Washington, D. C., in 1949.

One of the most interesting chapters of the band history was written in World War I. When war was declared, the entire Auburn band volunteered as a unit. Mr. Thomas was sent to Fort Sheridan, Chicago, where he trained a 100-piece band.

Solo clarinetist was P. R. Bidez, at that time better known to Auburnites for his football record. Mr. Bidez was given the rank of warrant officer and placed in charge of the Auburn musicians when they were ready to go overseas. Mr. Thomas returned to Auburn, where he is on the engineering faculty.

The Auburn Band was the first American group to march into Berlin after the armistice in 1918.

Mr. Bidez succeeded Mr. Thomas in 1922.

David Herbert named

MR. HERBERT became assistant bandmaster in 1948, and was named director when his chief retired in 1951. (Mr. Bidez is still serving as chief chemist for the state chemist's office, with offices at Auburn.)

A small Honor Band of 16 of the best musicians plus the drum major was organized in 1952. This group has now been enlarged to 20. It is small enough to move easily on one bus, and can represent Auburn at a ceremony where it would be impossible to take the larger band.

Honor Band members are always ready to march, play a concert, or both.

Sigma Chi to dedicate house

SIGMA CHI fraternity will dedicate its new $101,000 home in ceremonies at 10 a.m. Homecoming Day, Nov. 20.

Strick Newsom, chapter president, will receive the keys to the house from Hugh Cottle, '34, president of the Gamma Sigma House Corporation.

Other officials who have been invited include Judge Stanley N. Barnes, national President of Sigma Chi, and Robert C. Garrison, Birmingham attorney.

Completed in August

GROUND was broken for the house in December, 1953, and the building was completed in August. Van Keuren and Davis of Birmingham were architects for the building, and Auburn Ice and Coal Co. was contractor.

The fraternity is contemporary in design. The furniture, which will be traditional, will add $10,000 to the cost.

The building includes a living room, dining room, kitchen, separate chapter room, housemother's suite and 23 double rooms to house 46 members.

The house is located on West Magnolia Avenue, which is being developed into a new fraternity row.

Sigma Chis will hold open house all day Homecoming.

Homecoming Reminiscences

Auburn Revives Freshmen Traditions

FRESHMEN TRADITIONS have been enthusiastically revived on the Auburn campus.

The new students have worn their rat caps more regularly than any group since before World War II.

Not all freshmen obtained rat caps at the beginning of the quarter, however. The orange-and-blue caps, which are now worn by coeds as well as men students, were sold out long before all 1,550 incoming freshmen made purchases. A second shipment later provided enough rat caps for all.

Most impressive results of the drive to revive the traditions of Auburn rats have been the increased attendance at pep rallies and the impressive display of bright orange when the freshmen sit in a body at home football games.

Main Gate taboo

THE TRADITIONS which have been revived came from the Auburn "Rat Bible." They read:

Freshmen are required to wear rat cap at all times unless otherwise told.

No freshman can walk through the Main Gate at any time.

Freshmen are to speak to everyone and be courteous to upperclassmen at all times.

All freshmen will attend all freshmen functions.

All freshmen men will participate in the Wilbur Hutsell-ODK Cake Race, whether they walk, hop or run.

All freshmen will sit in a body and wear rat caps at home football games.

All freshmen men are required to participate in the Pajama Parade. All freshmen coeds are required to participate in the Pajama Parade wearing regular school clothes and rat caps.

All freshmen are required to vote in campus elections.

No freshman may walk on the grass.

Juniors sponsor revival

THE JUNIOR COUNCIL, under the leadership of Jim Rosser of Anniston, sponsored the revival. Members of the committee began work while they were sophomores, but the program was not put into effect until this fall.

Group pressure—instead of hazing and a rat court—is used to instill in every freshman the desire to live up to the famous Auburn traditions.

The Student Government bulletin, "War Eagle," pointed out, "The sharing of Auburn traditions will bind this year's freshmen into a closer knit cooperative Class of 1958."

Batey Gresham, member of the Junior Council, pointed out that the program has worked well. "While not all the freshmen cooperated, we believe that a fine spirit has come from the enforcing of the traditions, and observance will improve each year."

The 1954 freshmen will become guardians of the freshmen traditions in the fall of 1955, when they become sophomores.

Cheers from the portico

THE AUBURN UNION'S covered portico was turned into an elevated stage for the first 1954 pep rally. Athletic Director Jeff Beard, '32, climbed up a step ladder to reach the microphone for his talk to the student body assembled on the Union grass.

The student spirit has remained high during the fall.

Fraternity freshmen carried floats in the pajama parade before the Tech game, while other rats wore their loudest striped, figured or plaid pajamas. The pre-Georgia "Burn the Bulldog" rally will be held Nov. 11.

Named for Miss Allie

FINAL REGISTRATION figures show Auburn has 7,049 students registered for the fall quarter.

If additional living facilities for both men and women students had been available, enrollment would have been higher.

The building on Mell Street which formerly housed the student guidance center has been converted into a freshman women's residence. It has been

SHE USED some scissors on her rat cap to solve the problem of how to follow Auburn traditions and at the same time preserve her "pony tail." With ingenious named Glenn House, for the late Misses of Poultry." The book will be marketed internationally.

Pre-School rush week

FOR THE FIRST time, Auburn's 22 fraternities held pre-school rush week, under the sponsorship of the Interfraternity Council.

About 425 men came to the campus for the rush week, and 350 were pledged. Pledges were more evenly divided among fraternities than in past years, according to fraternity members.

Doug Lunsford, Interfraternity Council president, said the program was well accepted, and will definitely be continued.

Water shortage

WATER SUPPLIES posed a serious problem throughout the fall, as the City of Auburn faced a shortage due to the drought. Students were asked to reduce their consumption.

The perennial rumors that API would close temporarily, (which always accompany a water shortage in the town,) were denied by Dr. David W. Mullins, executive vice president of the college.

H. H. Mitchell of the department of economics and business administration received his Ph.D. degree in economics from the University of North Carolina. Other faculty members completing work for Ph. A. S. Chase, of Auburn's department of civil engineering, is the chairman of the construction committee of the American Society for Engineering Education's civil engineering division.

Other faculty notes

DR. F. S. ARANT, '26, has been named a member of the publication board of the "Journal of Economic Entomology." Dr. Arant is head of the Auburn department of zoology-entomology.

Frank W. Applebee, head of the art department, represented Auburn at the annual meeting of the National Association of Schools of Design in New York City in October.

Dr. E. P. Miles, Jr., associate professor of mathematics at API, attended the International Congress of Mathematics in Amsterdam, Holland in September. He read a paper, of which he and Dr. Ernest Williams of the mathematics faculty were co-authors.

Work of Dr. Mat Macon of the Auburn mathematics department was cited in a paper presented by an Oak Ridge, Tenn., National Laboratories scientist, at the Congress.

Returning to the campus this fall was Fred M. Hudson, associate professor of civil engineering. He spent the past year teaching at Robert College, Istanbul, Turkey, as an exchange teacher under the Smith-Mundt Act.

Military commandants

BOTH AUBURN'S Army and Navy ROTC units have new commanding officers this fall.

Col. Willis W. Whelchel, a 1927 West Point graduate who was assistant professor of military science and tactics at API in 1939-40, is head of the ROTC unit. Col. Whelchel served in Europe during World War II, participating in the North France, Ardennes, Rhineland and Central Europe campaigns.

He was stationed with the U.S. Forces Antilles, and served as executive officer of the 18th Airborne Corps Artillery before coming to Auburn.

Col. Whelchel succeeds Col. Walter J. Klepinger, who retired after completing his term of duty at API. Col. Klepinger came to API in 1952. He had been attached to the Auburn ROTC unit from 1934-39, when he also coached the polo team.

Col. Klepinger was stationed at Pearl Harbor at the time of the Japanese attack in 1941. He served in the Pacific during World War II, and later was assigned to the Joint American Military Advisory Group in London. There he participated in the planning for NATO.

At the final parade of Auburn's Army Cadet Regiment before Col. Klepinger's retirement, the regimental commander expressed appreciation for the commandant's "untiring interest and exemplary guidance during the past two years."

Col. and Mrs. Klepinger will continue to make their home in Auburn.

Annapolis graduate

CAPT. EUGENE F. May, the new head of the Naval ROTC unit, is a native of Gordo. He is a 1926 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis. He organized and directed training at the Naval Training Center, Farragut, Idaho. During World War II he saw service as executive and later commanding officer of ships in the Pacific.

During his 28 years of naval service, most of his shore duty has been in training and educational programs. Capt. May came to API from the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations in Washington, D.C.

Marine Col. George D. Bell, former NROTC commander, has been assigned to Camp LeJeune, N.C.

Beauty Ball Nov. 12

THE ANNUAL ODK-Glomerata Beauty Ball has been set for Nov. 12. This year the beauties will be judged in person. The 20 finalists and the eight beauties to be featured in the 1955 Glomerata will be presented to the student body at the ball.

The All-Campus Fund Drive, which corresponds to a Community Chest for Auburn students, has a goal of $1,000. The drive will be held the first week in November.

President Ralph Draughon will entertain student leaders at his home Nov. 10 to talk over student problems. The frank discussions gives students an opportunity to bring up criticisms of Auburn and make concrete suggestions.

Concert series opens

A CONCERT by the Columbus (Ohio) Boys' Choir Oct. 19 opened the 1954 Lecture and Concert Series at Auburn.

With allocation of Channel 2

Educational TV Will Cover Alabama

ONE OF THE most recent developments in the swift-moving educational television picture is the Federal Communication Commission's allocation of Channel 2 at Andalusia to the Alabama Educational Television Commission.

With the addition of this third channel, the state educational TV network will be able to reach 95 per cent of the population of Alabama. All three channels are in the VHF (Very High Frequency) band, where most of the present commercial television station channels are located.

The educational television transmitters will be located at Andalusia (Channel 2), atop Cheaha Mountain near Munford (Channel 7), and Birmingham (Channel 10).

Programs produced in the studios at Auburn, the University of Alabama and in Birmingham will be sent to the three transmitters by micro-wave relay. In turn, the transmitters will beam the same programs throughout the state.

Important to API

THE ALLOCATION of Channel 2 to the Alabama Educational TV Commission is especially significant for Auburn.

The API Board of Trustees at its June meeting called upon the FCC to award the channel at Andalusia to the State of Alabama. Auburn's Vice Executive Vice President David Mullins accompanied Raymond D. Hurlbert, state Education TV Commission president, to Washington to present the Alabama case.

The petition to the FCC pointed out, "A television station at this location would provide a program service, not intended solely for Andalusia and its environs, but to serve the entire area extending to Montgomery on the north, Dothan on the east, Mobile on the west and southwest, and the Gulf of Mexico on the South."

Complications arose when a Tallahassee, Fla., TV station sought Channel 2 for its commercial operations. After deliberation, the FCC announced in late September that the Alabama Educational Television Commission would receive Channel 2.

Auburn to get option

IN THE EVENT that the commission ceases to operate Channel 2, API will have the right of option to take over and operate the installations under the FCC franchise.

Experts estimated that Channels 7 and 10 provided educational television coverage to two-thirds of the people in Alabama. Channel 2 extends the coverage to 95 per cent of the people and 90 per cent of the state's area.

State network

EDUCATIONAL television was born in 1952 when the FCC allocated 242 channels to educational institutions and local communities for the exclusive use of education.

The original allocation included five channels in Alabama, awarded to API, the University of Alabama, Birmingham, Mobile and Montgomery.

The state government became interested, and studied the possibility of a statewide network combining the individual channels. In 1953 the Alabama Legislature created an Alabama Educational Television Commission to create and operate a statewide network, and appropriated $500,000 for its use.

Mr. Hurlbert and the four other members of the commission, including Rex Sikes, '31, of Luverne, studied a number of proposals before accepting the present plan for a state network.

The FCC granted permission to change the University's transmitter from Tuscaloosa to Cheaha Mountain, the highest point in the state. Also needed for the state network was the entirely new allocation of Channel 2 at the more desirable location in Andalusia.

Long-range plans call for additions of Ultra High Frequency channels at Mobile and Montgomery later.

Studios to be built

PROGRAMS will originate in studios at Auburn, the University and in Birmingham. Commissioner Hurlbert hopes the three-station network will begin broadcasting about Jan. 1, 1955.

Rudy Bretz, former CBS producer, has arrived in Birmingham to serve as program consultant to the Alabama network during its first year.

Two Birmingham stations—WABT and WBRC-TV—have offered the educational TV network studios for a specific amount of time for telecasting. The University is now enlarging radio studios for television use.

Auburn will build a $65,000 to $70,000 studio building of contemporary design. It will face east on Donahue Drive, near the farm management house and Burke Dairy Laboratory.

Sam F. Brewster, director of buildings and grounds, said the campus planning committee, the State Building Commission, the Educational Television Commission and Van Keuren and Davis, architects have conferred. Working drawings will be prepared, and plans are to break ground for the building early in January.

taken several times during the season because the length of growth period, as well as palatability and feeding value, are often more important than total production.

Corn is example

THE VALUE of variety tests can be seen by looking at corn yields in the state. About 50 per cent of Alabama's corn acreage of 1,110,000 acres was planted to hybrid seed in 1953.

The experiment station's corn variety tests show that the best adapted hybrids yield about 20 per cent more corn than open-pollinated corns or poorly adapted hybrids. Thus, the use of recommended hybrids in 1953 on the other half of the acreage would have increased corn yields by 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 bushels.

The use of adapted varieties of other crops will produce yield increases fully as great as that of corn.

Crop varieties frequently have small adaptations, climatic and soil areas of adaptation. Combine Sagra, for instance, is a new variety of grain sorghum that is superior to other varieties in Central and Southern Alabama. It does not mature early enough for planting in Northern Alabama.

Certain cotton varieties are superior for Northern Alabama, but can not be used in the southern portion of the state because of susceptibility to wilt.

Experimental areas

FOR EXPERIMENTAL purposes, the state has been divided into three geographic areas—Northern, Central and Southern Alabama.

The objectives of variety testing change with new developments in agriculture. Mechanization, for instance, brought out the need for upright cotton, short-stalked corn, weather-resistant peanuts, and soybeans pods well above ground level.

Thus variety testing is a continuing job needed to assist Alabama farmers in obtaining efficient production in a progressive agriculture.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This article first appeared in "Highlights of Agricultural Research," a new quarterly magazine issued by the Agricultural Experiment Station of API.

The magazine is distributed to key farmers and professional agricultural leaders and teachers in Alabama, to help them keep abreast of the research which Auburn is conducting. The first issue was published in June.

Experiment Station conducts

200 Crop Tests in 1953

By Dr. Howard T. Rogers, Head Department of Agronomy and Soils

MANY AUBURN ALUMNI remember Nov. 25, 1950, as the coldest Homecoming ever held in the "loveliest village." Those who came to the campus to see Auburn meet Orange Bowl-bound Clemson shivered in the 10-degree weather as they watched the Plainsman's 41-0 defeat.

"It was frigid," the Alumnews reported.

Auburn alumni are not the only Alabamians who remember that particular cold wave. For it was that weekend in November which put the bite on the non-hardy varieties of alfalfa under test at Auburn and on the substations and experimental fields of the Alabama Agricultural Experiment Station throughout the state.

Alfalfa lost

UNFORTUNATELY, many Alabama farmers also lost their stands of unadapted varieties of alfalfa. This discouraged the use of a crop that has proved to be the "queen of the forages" in other sections of the United States.

Experiment Station tests have shown that there are a number of adapted varieties of alfalfa which will thrive on Alabama's farms. These include Oklahoma common, Kansas common, Narragansett, Atlantic and Williamsburg. They are being grown successfully on some 40,000 acres in the state.

Oldest kind of research

VARIETY TESTING is one of the oldest types of research conducted by the API Agricultural Experiment Station. In 1953, nearly 200 tests were conducted at various locations in the state, ranging from the Tennessee Valley and Sand Mountain on the north to the Gulf Coast on the south, and from Auburn on the east to Aliceville and Winfield on the west.

These tests included 14 on fiber crops, 43 on grain crops, 19 on oil crops, 116 on forages and 2 on sugar. The following chart shows the scope of the field crop variety tests in Alabama in 1953, with the number of locations of tests for each crop:

Fiber	Sericea	3
Cotton	13 Vetches	1
Bamboo	1 White clover	3
Grain	Grasses
Corn	15 Bahia	13
Small grains	16 Bermuda	2
Grain sorghum	12 Brrome	13
Oil	Dallis	13
Peanuts	1 Millet	3
Soybeans	4 Napier	1
Flax	1 Orchard	13
Sugar	Reed canary	13
Cane	1 Rescue	4
Sorghum	1 Ryegrass	13
Forage	Small grains	16
Legumes:	Sudangrass	3
Alfalfa	6 Sweet sorghum	1
Crimson clover	1 Tall fescue	13
Lupine	3 Turf	1

Generally, new crop varieties are not recommended until they have performed satisfactorily for three years.

Total yield is only one of the factors that must be measured. In determining the worth of varieties under test, records of disease and insect damage, lodging, quality of fiber, forage or seed, cold and drought resistance and suitability for machine harvesting must also be used.

With some crops, yields must be

Home Demonstration Awards

THREE AUBURN-trained home demonstration agents were presented distinguished service awards at the National Home Demonstration Agents' Conference in Chicago, Ill., Oct. 13.

They are Myrtice Vinson, '30, who has 24 years of service as home demonstration agent in Bienville Parish, La.; Kirtis Martin, '32, home demonstration agent in Bibb County, Ala., for almost 20 years; and Lillian Cox, '26, who has served 19 years as Henry County home agent.

Each agent was recommended for the special honor by a state committee, based on her contributions in developing leaders among the people with whom she worked.

The excellent home demonstration and 4-H club programs in the three counties were cited by the selection committees.

First in Bienville

MISS VINSON earned a B.S. degree in home economics from Auburn in 1930, and went to Bienville Parish as its first home agent in October of that year. She now has two assistant agents to help her serve the parish with its 11 girls' 4-H clubs and 18 home demonstration clubs. Miss Vinson has done graduate work at LSU. She is a native of Ochatchee.

Miss Martin, a native of Greensboro, earned her Auburn degree in home economics. "Down through the years, her ability to plan and organize has helped her render great services to the

Auburn Wins One, Drops Two

Editor's note: Red Provost, '55, assistant to the sports publicity director, wrote the sports stories for this issue of The Auburn Alumnews.

AFTER THE Tigers' 1954 football season was three games old, speculation was rife as to the outlook for the remainder of the schedule. The opener had been sufficiently impressive—Auburn 45, Chattanooga 0—but then the upheaval began.

An underrated pack of Florida 'Gators stunned the Tigers with a 19-13 upset, and seven days later underdog Kentucky pulled roughly the same trick, 21-14.

Wise men around the conference nonetheless continued to hold the War Eagles in considerable esteem, owing to powerful offensive displays in every game.

Auburn still had the potent passing duo of Bobby Freeman-to-Jim Pyburn, and the latter, an All-America candidate, was currently second in the SEC with 13 catches. Freeman, with 24 completions for 36 attempts, was also a top contender for honors.

Joe Childress was the leading Tiger runner, with 176 net yards and a 6.3 yard average. Dave Middleton was second with 168 yards and a 9.7 average.

Auburn 45, Chattanooga 0

JORDAN'S X aggregation outscored the Y outfit, 25-20, with the hapless Moccasins serving as a mutual sparring partner in Cliff Hare Stadium Sept. 25.

This came as something of a surprise to all, because the Y team had returned practically intact from 1953.

Halfback Dave Middleton, despite an injured leg, racked up 145 yards rushing during the afternoon.

Junior Alton Shell showed up well, scoring twice. Freeman connected with six of seven passes, five of which went to his favorite target, Pyburn. Total yardage showed 433 yards for Auburn, 148 yards for the Mocs.

Auburn 13, Florida 19

THIRTY-FIVE thousand fans crammed into Florida Field Oct. 2, expecting to see Auburn take the 'Gators in stride.

Prognosticators had said that the road would be a rocky one, but no one had counted on the fury of one Bobby Lance. This lad made liars of the statistics and led his mates to glory by grasping every opportunity.

The Tigers trailed, 6-0, at the half, and were 13 points behind in the third quarter.

The indignant Plainsmen roared back to tie the game, 13-13, eight minutes from game's end, but the Gators would not be squelched. They pulled ahead once more, this time for keeps, and stopped Auburn's final drive.

Auburn 14, Kentucky 21

IN LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 9, the wiley Wildcats of Blanton Collier pounced on the Tigers for an early seven points and Shug's men were in for a difficult evening.

With a minute left in the first half, a Freeman-sparked drive was climaxed by a Childress touchdown and extra point, tying things up.

Kentucky scored again early in the third stanza, but Freeman again led his charges back up the field, this time connecting with Pyburn in the end zone. Auburn 14, Kentucky 14.

Then, as Auburn rooters stood aghast, the Tiger line was riddled as the Wildcats ground out 72 yards for the final score.

Baby Tigers Take Bullpups, 33-6

COACH DICK McGowen's Baby Tigers spent the afternoon of Oct. 4 proving that future football years on the Plains are well worth looking forward to. They romped past the Georgia Bullpups, 33-6.

Five different players scored Auburn's touchdowns, as the young Plainsmen pulled away after holding only a 13-6 lead at the half.

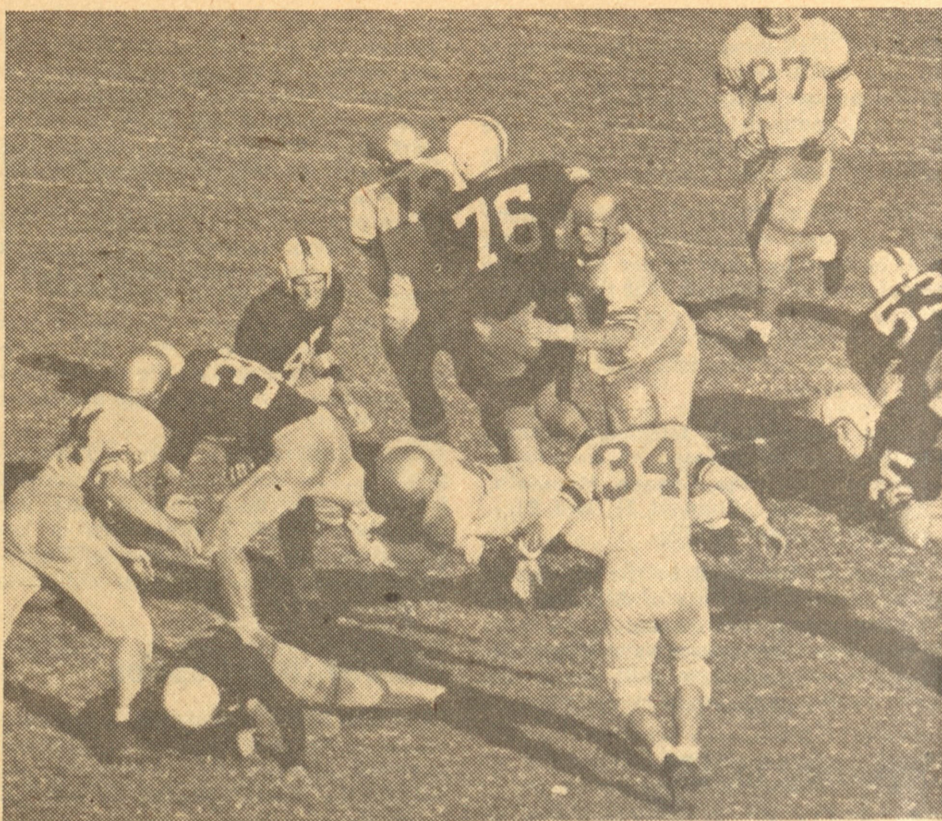

Georgia didn't make a first down in the entire second half, and the Bullpups lost a total of 32 yards rushing during the last two quarters. The Baby Tigers racked up 18 first downs to Georgia's three, and had 310 total yards to 54 for the Bullpups.

Cook, Hoppe star

JIMMY COOK, 190-pound quarterback from College Park, Ga., and GMA, provided most of Auburn's passing attack, completing four of seven for 56 yards and one touchdown.

Bobby Hoppe of Chattanooga showed the prowess which earned him All-America recognition as a prepper. He was the leading ground-gainer for the Baby Tigers with 76 yards in nine carries for an 8.4 average.

Other key runners for the Auburn squad were fullbacks Jimmy Ricketts, Billy Atkins, and Lloyd Fowler. Sub quarterback Donnie May, who had played the position only a week, showed up nicely.

BILLY ATKINS, (30) scores the Baby Tigers' second touchdown in the 33-6 win over the Georgia Bullpups at API Oct. 4. In foreground Guard Sentell Harper has blocked his man. Other Auburn freshmen shown are End Jimmy Reece (behind Atkins), Tackle Bill Mooneyham (76), Center Billy Pappanastos (53) and Guard Tim Baker, right foreground.

ABOUT 500 persons attended two technical conferences—for veterinarians and textile operating executives—in Auburn in September.

The 30th annual conference for veterinarians was held Sept. 16-18, with meetings in the new Auburn Union. Eleven visiting lecturers from throughout the country appeared on the program. Members of the Auburn veterinary faculty also gave papers.

With 240 veterinarians from Alabama and surrounding states attending, the 1954 meeting was the largest in the 30-year history of the conference.

In addition to the program, the visiting veterinarians attended a barbecue at the Saughatchee Country Club.

Dr. J. E. Greene, '33, head of the small animal clinic at Auburn, was conference chairman.

Attending the fall meeting of the Alabama Textile Operating Executives at API Sept. 25 were 250 mill managers and executives from Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, Georgia, North and South Carolinas and New York.

Major discussions were slashing problems, led by W. T. Curry, '42, Cone Mills, Alabama City; and weaving problems, led by Bill Williams, Avondale Mills, Sylacauga.

Cleveland Adams, '32, head of the API textile department is secretary for the organization. Plans adopted last spring call for the textile executives to hold one workshop-type session in Auburn every fall and an annual meeting, to be held in various cities, in the spring.

Georgia's Registered Women Engineers Both Auburnites

ONLY TWO women have qualified for licenses as registered engineers in Georgia—and both of them are Auburnites.

Anne Bonds, '50, of Atlanta completed four years' experience in the electrical field, entitling her to take the test for the State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors this summer. After passing a grueling eight-hour exam, she was registered as Engineer 3324.

Dorothy Duggar, '26, is the other woman member of the select group of engineers. She was qualified by the Georgia board on her education and experience record in the field of sanitary engineering. Her registration number, 3001, was issued in March, 1953, making her the first woman registered in Georgia. Miss Duggar is also registered as a professional engineer in the State of South Carolina.

Both are active members of the Georgia Society of Professional Engineers. Miss Bonds was the first woman admitted to that organization.

Co-op engineer

BECAUSE HER father was an engineer, Anne chose that profession too. She came to Auburn as a co-op student, working for Georgia Power Co., and attending classes at API alternate quarters for six years. On the campus she was a member of the "Auburn Engineer" staff, Oracles and Owls honoraries, and Delta Zeta sorority.

After graduation, she continued as an engineer-in-training with Georgia Power. Later Miss Bonds became a junior project engineer for the Rome (Ga.) Kraft Co.

She has become associated with an consulting engineer in Atlanta since her registration.

Three Auburn degrees

MISS DUGGAR, a native of Auburn, holds three bachelor's degrees from API. She studied science and literature, earning a degree in 1926, and was granted a degree in architecture in 1927. She earned a degree in history in 1951.

She has been a sanitary engineer in both Georgia and South Carolina. At present she is associated with Lockwood Greene Engineering Co. of Spartanburg, S. C.

Miss Duggar is a member of Kappa Delta sorority.

sonville, N. C.; J. H. Watt, Auburn, L. W. Puckett, Scottsboro; U. T. Crocker, Monticello, Fla.; back row: J. H. Sharman, Albany, Ga.; J. W. Dantzler, Orangeburg, S. C.; Max Autrey, Ft. Deposit; C. S. Otto, Dadeville; Ross Cryar, Birmingham; J. E. Neal, Auburn; M. D. Wiggins, Hartselle; Max Maughon, Sparta, Tenn. Present, but not pictured, were F. T. Sutton, Columbus, Ga.; and A. M. Creswell, Union City, Tenn. Dr. Watt organized the reunion.

Have you ever wondered how The Alumnews gets the information for the Alumnae section?

Alumni and their friends supply the news. Many of the items are sent to Auburn Alumni Association headquarters in the new Auburn Union in letters or questionnaires. Visitors to the alumni offices often give information about their classmates.

The information is gathered from newspapers, from post office change of address cards, from telephone calls and from reports of club meetings.

Won't you help? When you send in annual dues, change of addresses or other information to the Auburn Alumni Association, why not include current items about yourself, your classmates and your relatives who attended API?

The address is Auburn Alumni Association, API, Auburn, Alabama.

Col. Jolly, '38, Reports to Japan

ALTHOUGH Hoyt A. Jolly, '38, was one of the first American pilots sent to the South Pacific after the Pearl Harbor attack, he didn't get to Japan during World War II.

Now he is going. Lt. Col. Jolly has orders to report to Far East Headquarters in Tokyo at the end of October. He will leave his wife and three children in Gadsden for the present, with plans for them to join him within a year.

Col. Jolly has just completed four years' service as Air Force professor of military science and tactics at the University of Mississippi.

Joins Air Force

THE YEAR after he graduated from Auburn, he resigned his reserve commission in the field artillery to take pilot training in the Air Force. He was in California when the United States entered World War II, and his bomber group soon headed for the South Pacific.

Lt. Jolly led raids on Japanese-held islands, winning the Distinguished Flying Cross for his feats in the Rabaul area. When he was wounded in 1943, he returned to the United States and later helped train other pilots as a squadron leader at Barksdale Field, La.

Col. Jolly returned to the API campus in early October to visit his mother, Mrs. Rena M. Jolly, who is hostess at the new Auburn Union. On his tour of the modern million-dollar building, he visited the Alumni Association headquarters.
